“ Walking my dog the past few years I observed, Jack and Joyce sitting outside on sunny days on Walnut Street. Their dog was a similar breed, and I started to wave as I went by. Time passed and I no longer saw the dog, so stopped to visit. They said their dog had died and it was very much like mine. We stayed, and got acquainted. Frequently during walking season, we began stop for a visit. There will be an empty place in our walks now. My condolences to the family; Jack and Joyce were very kind, and certainly Jack will be missed by many.
